Bremen is where the traditional meets the modern, and metropolitan living meets north German hospitality. Here, you never have to travel too far or for too long. In Bremen, history, culture and life's little pleasures are closely interwoven – and are often only a short walk apart. Arriving in the city by air is particularly convenient, as the journey from the airport to the city centre takes only eleven minutes by tram. Go on the trail of the Town Musicians for a true fairytale experience and discover Bremen's feel-good factor.

Whether walking, cycling or using public transport, getting around Bremen is easy. Bremen measures only 10 km by 2 km, and is filled with architectural gems such as the Schnoor-Viertel complete with its' medieval buildings. The Bremer Kunsthalle houses one of Germany's finest art collections.

There are few public parks which have a vibrancy like Bürgerpark, located in the middle of the city. Stop to have a bite to eat at the cafe, play a round of miniature golf or bring a blanket and watch the world pass by.

Sports fans will already be aware that Bremen is the home of Werder Bremen, a German premier league (Bundesliga) team. Stadium tours are offered for those who want to get up close and personal with the home of this famous team.

There are many museums and galleries dotted throughout the city, and a family friendly, interactive science center, Universum Bremen.

There is always something exciting going on in Bremen, Since 1036 during the last two weeks of October, Bremen has hosted Freimarkt, one of the largest fairground festivals in Europe.

With so much to see, eat, do and experience - let

Bremen lead you down its' cobbled streets to an adventure that awaits.

The Bremen Town Musicians

The Town Musicians of Bremen, made famous by the Brothers Grimm fairytale, are the unmistakable icon of our Hanseatic city. In 1953, they were honoured in bronze with a statue created by the artist Gerhard Marcks. You'll see the statue on the left-hand side of the Rathaus (Town Hall). Another insider tip: grabbing the donkey's front legs with both hands is said to bring luck. However: you'll reveal yourself as a newcomer if you only grab one of the legs. As the local saying goes, that's one donkey shaking another one by the hand.

The "Bremer Hole in the Ground" in front of Bremen's Parliament building is also something worth noticing. For a modest donation, the animals will thank you personally. And, if you don't believe in fairy stories, a visit to the grave of the Donkey in the Böttcherstraße will surely change your mind.

Market square

The most magnificent building on the market square is without doubt the town hall. In front of it stands the proud statue of Roland, which symbolises the freedom of the city. Both have been awarded UNESCO World Heritage status. Turning clockwise on the Hanseatic Cross near the statue, you can see St. Peter's Cathedral, the State Parliament and the Schütting guildhall. Just past the Schütting, a narrow lane leads to Böttcherstrasse. On the western side of the Kontorhaus shopping arcade follows a row of beautiful gabled buildings.

Museen Böttcherstrasse

Built in 1931 to plans created by Bernhard Hoetger, the Böttcherstraße deserves its reputation as a monumental Expressionist artwork. At the very heart of the street is the "Glockenspiel House" whose 30 Meissen porcelain bells chime on the hour to mark the passing of time. The two museums in this street are also well worth a visit. The Paula Modersohn-Becker Museum is the very first museum in the world to be dedicated to the work of a female artist. It not only displays her artworks, but also a series of ever-changing temporary exhibitions. In contrast, the Ludwig Roselius House museum is where you'll find an impressive collection of ancient works of art and domestic artefacts. In addition to these two museums, this wonderfully eclectic street has numerous other venues to discover, such as the Handwerkerhof courtyard and the Bonbonmanufaktur confectionery shop.

Weser River

Flowing through the heart of Bremen is the Weser river: an old trading route that was the driving force behind the city's emergence as a proud Hanseatic centre. Bremen's seafaring traditions are still alive and have a big part to play in its unique appeal. Ship ahoy! Moored on both banks of the Weser river numerous ships and smaller boats display the seafaring traditions of Bremen. They are part of the unique maritime flair of the city.

Culinary Bremen

There's plenty to tempt your taste buds in Bremen, whether you join a culinary tour of the city, visit one of our many restaurants or get hands on and brew your own Bremen beer. Enjoying good food and drink is an important part of life in Bremen! The green bottle with the iconic key logo is a Bremen export that's famous the world over, so a guided tour of the long-established Beck's brewery is a definite must. But the old merchant city has plenty more to offer. It's also the home of fine Hachez chocolate, while the town hall's Ratskeller houses a huge selection of exquisite wines. And when the wind blows in the right direction, the streets are filled with the delicious aroma of roasting coffee.

The Schnoor quarter

This pretty little quarter takes its name from the fact that its many old buildings line the narrow lanes like pearls on a string (Schnur in German). Nowhere else in Bremen do you find so many restaurants and cafés, arts & crafts boutiques and souvenir shops in such a small area as in the Schnoor - the oldest quarter of the city.

Internet: www.bremen.eu/schnoor-quarter

The Viertel ('quarter')

The trendy districts of Ostertor and Steintor - which the locals simply call the 'Viertel' - are only a few minutes' walk from the city centre. In the quirky pubs, trendy bars and cosy cafés here, you can relax or get into the party spirit for the night ahead. Tips on pubs and bars can be found here. Two of the best places to go dancing are Lila Eule and Club Moments:

Lila Eule

Opened in January 1965, this basement disco has a long tradition. It was a meeting place for the Bremen APO (extra-parliamentary opposition) and a starting point for the German student movement of 1968. Today it is a club and concert venue, open at weekends and occasionally during the week. It offers a wide spectrum of music that includes everything from electro swing and hip-hop to indie. Thursday is student night.

www.lilaeule.com

Club Moments

As colourful as the Viertel itself, Club Moments is a bar and disco and can be hired for events. It hosts salsa and Latin American dance parties weekly, GayCandy every month and regular concerts.

Knowledge Worlds

Bremen is an innovative place - a fact that becomes clear as soon as you visit any one of the city's numerous exhibitions on science and technology. The Science Center at Universum Bremen explores deep inside the Earth, the Ethnological Museum takes you all the way around it, and the Botanika horticultural science centre puts it under the microscope to reveal the secret world of plants - particularly rhododendrons.

ARTS & CULTURE

Universum Bremen

"Tell me and I'll forget. Show me and I'll remember. Involve me and I'll understand." A wise piece of advice from the ancient Chinese philosopher Confucius that Bremen has put into practice - in the museums that entertain as they educate and discovery centres that are more than just a fun day out. For the 'Knowledge Worlds' in Bremen and Bremerhaven the magic is in the mix - a wealth of information that is well explained and clearly presented.

Avant-garde and Old Masters, traditional customs, experimentation, ethnology, natural history - Bremen's museums cast their net far and wide.

Böttcherstraße museums

Built in 1931 to plans created by Bernhard Hoetger, the Böttcherstraße deserves its reputation as a monumental expressionist artwork. It's also home to two unique museums. The Paula Modersohn-Becker Museum is the very first museum in the world to be dedicated to the work of a female artist. It houses a multitude of paintings created by the artist, who came from Worpswede, alongside ever-changing temporary exhibitions. Ludwig Roselius was the donor who made it possible to create the Böttcherstraße possible. The museum that bears his name is home to medieval masterpieces and the world's largest collection of works by Bernhard Hoetger.

Wilhelm Wagenfeld House

The Wilhelm Wagenfeld House is situated in a historic building in the classical style on the "culture mile" in the Viertel district. Wilhelm Wagenfeld (1900-1990) was a student of the renowned Bremer Bauhaus school and known for his timeless product designs, some of which are still produced today. Visit this museum to find out more about his work or attend one of the events that focus on the history of design.

Gerhard Marcks House

The Gerhard Marcks House on Bremen's "cultural mile" is dedicated to sculpture. This internationally recognised sculpture museum is home to the vast majority of the artworks created by Gerhard Marcks, a sculptor from Berlin who, among other things, gifted the City of Bremen with his famous statue of the Town Musicians. The collection continues to expand, with the addition of works by other sculptors, including contemporary artists.

Focke Museum

The Focke Museum, also known as the State Museum for Art and Cultural History, is Bremen's history museum. Situated in the grounds of what was once the Riensberg estate, the museum includes a park and six exhibition buildings. Artefacts ranging from antique furniture to painted masterpieces and examples of artisanal crafts give visitors tangible insights eye-witness statements, historical photos and other information about the submarine bunker that testify to the lives and conditions endured by the labourers once forced to work on its construction.

Overbeck Museum

The historic listed "Alten Packhaus" (Old Warehouse) building in Bremen's Vegesack district is home to the Overbeck Museum, which is dedicated to the Worpswede artist couple Fritz and Hermine Overbeck. Their paintings, drawings and etchings have been on permanent display at this venue since 1990. The permanent display is frequently accompanied by special exhibitions, lectures, guided tours and art tours.

Bremer Philharmoniker

The Bremer Philharmoniker orchestra has already celebrated its 200th birthday, making it one of the oldest orchestras in the world. Its deep-rooted traditions and the variety of its artistic outreach programmes secure its place as an essential part of musical life and culture in North West Germany. Former conductors of the Bremer Philharmoniker include world-renowned musicians such as Johannes Brahms. The orchestra has an innovative and wide-ranging repertoire that includes opera, chamber music and philharmonic concerts. It also performs benefit concerts for charities and has an active outreach programme to promote young musicians. If you want to listen to the Bremer Philharmoniker for yourself, the best place to go is the "Glocke", the ensemble's official residence.

Kunsthalle (art museum)

Where art lovers feel right at home! The historic Kunsthalle is home to masterpieces dating back almost 600 years and contemporary works of art. Its extensive collection of paintings, sculptures and graphic art works is regularly complemented by special themed exhibitions. Take care you are not so entranced by the contents that you forget to admire the exterior of the Kunsthalle! The classical lines of the original building are brought into sharp relief by its modern extensions. In the evenings, the light installation by artist James Turrell adds a special dimension to the museum.

ATTRACTIONS

Michael Bahlo / BTZ Bremer Touristik-Zentrale

Bremen has many attractions to offer its visitors - the Bremen Town Musicians and the UNESCO World Heritage town hall are certainly among the most popular. But did you know that Bremen is also a city of science? You can find out how astronauts live in the International Space Station or sit and tremble on the earthquake sofa at Universum Bremen. Or perhaps you would like to venture into the world of shipbuilding or explore the pretty narrow lanes of the Schnoor quarter? We have put together a list of eleven highlights that are not to be missed on a visit to the city.

The Bremen Town Musicians

These four fairy tale animals are as much a part of Bremen as the river Weser, and you come across them wherever you wander in the old quarter. You can see the famous sculpture outside the town hall, hear the animals' voices coming out of the ground in front of the State Parliament building and visit the donkey's grave on Böttcherstrasse.

Beck's brewery

From Bremen to the whole world: Beck's beer, in its distinctive green bottles, featuring the key on Bremen's coat of arms, is probably Bremen's most successful export. It is still produced in the city centre. The "Kaiserbrauerei Beck & May o.H.G" was founded on June 27th, 1873 by Lüder Rutenberg, Heinrich Beck and Thomas May. Today, more than 3,000 bottles of Beck's are opened every minute world-wide, making it one of the most popular beers in the world. Take a tour around the brewery to discover the secrets of the brewer's art and interesting facts about the brewery and the popular Beck's and Haake-Beck brands.

Ratskeller (Town Hall cellars)

The Rathaus is home to spectacular treasures, and so are its cellars. Bremen's great historic Ratskeller is where you'll find the world's largest collection of German wines. 1,200 different wines, the oldest dating from 1653, are carefully looked after here in the "treasure chamber". You can see the entire collection by taking a tour of the cellars. However, if you prefer drinking wine to simply looking at it, we recommend taking a detour into the Ratskeller restaurant to sample some of the vintages on their wine list.

Mühle am Wall (mill by the city wall)

This 100 year-old windmill in the Wallanlagen park is still one of the most popular destinations in the centre of Bremen. The former flour mill is now home to a welcoming café and restaurant. The mill's elevated position in the park, overlooking the city's old defensive walls, makes it the perfect place for taking photos. Come here to enjoy a coffee and a slice of cake in peace, even though you're right in the city centre. The Kaffee Mühle café is also the ideal starting point for a stroll through the Wallanlagen park.

Mercedes

Bremen is not only one of North Germany's leading industrial cities, it's also home to world famous brands such as Mercedes Benz. The car manufacturer from Stuttgart actually has its largest German production plant in Bremen, where more than 2 million cars roll off the line every year. If you've always wanted to have a look behind the scenes, take a tour of the Mercedes production facility or try out your driving skills in an SUV on the off-road course.

Überseestadt (the New Harbour District)

This is where Bremen's past meets its future. The old harbour district is being transformed into an innovative new neighbourhood, characterised by its futuristic architecture. Make sure you spot the relics of a bygone era such as the Bremer Speicher (store) or the old Molenturm. The Überseestadt (the New Harbour District) is where you'll find a truly inspirational range of things to see and do. There's the quirky restaurants, the theatres and even a "black light" mini golf course. UNESCO World Heritage Rathaus and Roland

You can't fail to be impressed by the magnificently decorated Weser-renaissance façade of the Rathaus, which has stood on the marketplace since 1405. The Upper Hall, with its series of paintings depicting stories from Bremen's past, the model ships suspended from its ceiling and the opulent "Golden Chamber" with its stunning Art Nouveau interior created by local artist Heinrich Vogeler, are all unmissable sights within the Town Hall itself. And the cellars of the Town Hall are home to yet another treasure: the largest collection of German wine in the world is hidden in its vaults. 1,200 different wine varieties are stored here in the "treasure chamber", the oldest vintage dating back to 1653.

The Roland statue keeps watch over the market place from a commanding position in front of the Rathaus. This 10m high statue of the famous knight was erected in 1404, making it one of the oldest of its type. Roland granted trading and city rights to Bremen and represents freedom. For this reason, the statue gazes straight out towards St. Peter's Cathedral, as a symbol of Bremen's status as a free city. Both the statue of Roland and the Rathaus were formally awarded UNESCO World Heritage Site status in 2004.

Maritime mile

Bremen's seafaring traditions are especially well preserved in the Vegesack district to the north, where Germany's first man-made harbour was created almost 400 years ago. Today the recently completed 1.8km maritime mile along the river Weser boasts a range of attractions including the multimedia Spicarium exhibition, captains' houses, the signal station and the towboat Regina.

Worpswede artists village

Art is a way of life in the village of Worpswede, which lies approximately 30km outside Bremen.

This modest village in the Teufelsmoor marshes is known far and wide for the talents of its inhabitants, who are still actively involved in the creative arts. Here, you can visit museums of local art, watch artists as they work or even take part in workshops and express your own creative side. You can reach the artists village by car, by the Moorexpress train or by boat (from the Vegesack district).

The Schlachte Embankment

Anyone looking for a break from all the highbrow culture should stroll down to the Schlachte promenade along the river Weser. Its numerous pubs and bars - many with outdoor seating areas - make a great place to chill out. An antiques and bric-a-brac market is held here every Saturday during the spring and summer months. In the run-up to Christmas the medieval atmosphere of the Schlachte-Zauber market gets everyone in the right mood for the festive season.

The Maritime Mile in Vegesack

Visitors can explore Bremen's rich seafaring tradition on the Maritime Mile in the district of Vegesack, where Germany's first man-made harbour was built 400 years ago. The country's last fully-rigged sailing ship still afloat is anchored here, while the historical Spicarium harbour warehouse presents an interactive exhibition on shipbuilding, sailing, marine bionics and yacht design.

QUALITY STARS

Ingrid Krause / BTZ Bremer Touristik-Zentrale

Bremen is home to a wide range of big brands and manufacturers, including Beck's beer, Jacob's coffee, Milka and Hachez chocolate, Kellogg's cornflakes, Chiquita bananas and Philadelphia cream cheese. And just like with any good recipe, the secret to Bremen's success lies in the right balance of ingredients - here you'll find both international brands and family-owned businesses that are steeped in tradition. All over Bremen, smaller local producers put their heart and soul into creating the most wonderful delicacies. These make the perfect souvenir for visiting tourists. Many producers also offer guided tours and experiences, where visitors get a chance to see how the finished product is made. Why not give one of them a try?

Bremen Bonbon Manufaktur sweet shop

You'll find the most tempting shop windows in town at the Bremer Bonbon Manufaktur sweet factory in the Böttcherstraße and its shop in the Schnoor district. Glass jars filled with brightly coloured sweets and lollipops will tempt you inside, literally, like a child in a sweetie shop. And while you're indulging your sweet tooth, you can watch how sugar and other ingredients are transformed into mouth-watering confections. The sweet jars and lollipops are ideal souvenirs of Bremen, for friends and family (or even for yourself).

Lloyd Caffee

Coffee is still being produced in a factory building in the Überseestadt (the New Harbour District) that was formerly home to Kaffee HAG. Coffee has been roasted by hand at Lloyd Caffee for 85 years, making it the oldest roastery in Bremen. Take a tour round the coffee roastery, which now belongs to Lloyd Caffee GmbH, to discover many fascinating facts about coffee, the roasting process and the history of coffee beans. A highpoint of the tour is the imposing marble hall, which was constructed in 1914 in the instruction of Bremen coffee magnate Ludwig Roselius, and is now a listed building.

Piekfeine Brände distilled products

This "transparent factory" in the Europahafen is where schnapps, whiskey, liqueurs and gin have been distilled since 2011. It's where fruit is transformed into Piekfeine fruit brandies and fruit liqueur. Visit Piekfeine Brände for a tour, a tasting session or a seminar to find out how spirits are created and discover more about the art of distillation. You can even try out the exclusive brandies for yourself.

Lebkuchen Manufaktur: the artisanal gingerbread bakery

Another speciality from Bremen: hand-made gingerbread Lebkuchen! Lebkuchen Manufaktur, the artisanal gingerbread bakery, is a family business which invites visitors to watch how its delicious glazed gingerbreads are made at its factory in the Überseestadt (the New Harbour District). In wintertime, you can visit the factory to discover how this Bremen speciality is created and let the irresistible aroma tempt you to taste it yourself.

Schüttinger brewery

Are you keen on drinking beer and trying traditional food? Then you'll feel right at home in Bremen's oldest pub brewery, where traditional hospitality is alive and well. Not only can you drink the extremely palatable beer, but you can also watch it be-ing brewed before your very eyes. Take a seat at one of the long wooden tables and wash down a hearty meal of local ingredients with a beer (or two) in the very best pub tradition.

Hopfenfänger (hop catcher) beer

Bremer Braumanufaktur is where you'll find regional beers that are something out of the ordinary. Situated in the Überseestadt (the New Harbour District), this brewery is entirely dedicated to craft beer and sustainability. The hops used in its beers are grown right next door, in special raised beds in a local urban farming project. If you've always wanted to brew your own beer or experience a day in the life of a master brewer, this is just the place for you. The Bremer Braumanufaktur also runs brewing seminars where you can create your own beer, with expert help and advice from the professionals.

Cross Coffee

If you really love coffee, don't miss the freshly roasted coffee creations at Cross Coffee! The coffee beans are supplied by small independent producers and roasted using a process specially designed to bring out the full aroma. Cross Coffee has been part of Bremen's coffee scene since 2013 and is the first coffee roaster to offer sustainably produced speciality coffee in Bremen. Its menu not only offers the standard range of espresso or filter variants, but also fruit-flavoured and even chocolate-flavoured coffees.

Beck's brewery

From Bremen to the whole world: Beck's beer, probably Bremen's most successful export, in its distinctive green bottles, is still produced in the city centre. Take a tour around the brewery to discover the secrets of the brewer's art and interesting facts about the Beck's and Haake-Beck brands. Have a look around the museum, and then follow the guide past the ingredients store and brew house, the malt silos and the fermentation and storage tanks. Afterwards, there's a beer-tasting session where you can sample a range of Beck's products. Cheers!

Münchhausen

Traditional coffee roasters since 1935 – that's what the name Münchhausen represents. The Stephaniviertel district is still home to this traditional Bremen company, which prides itself on using authentic methods to roast coffee beans. Münchhausen is the last of Bremen's original coffee companies and is still resident in the heart of the city. A visit here will tell you so much about the history of coffee and the processes involved in its cultivation and processing. The tour will also show you how coffee beans are roasted.

FOOD AND DRINK

Rike Oehlerking / BTZ Bremer Touristik-Zentrale

Calling all foodies! As you wander through the twisting cobbled streets you will be seduced by a mix of trendy bistros, international cafés and home style restaurants serving hearty local specialties. Kohl und Pinkel (cabbage and spicy sausage) keep Bremen fans wanting for more. Labskaus, Grünkohl and Knipp, a poor man's mix of grits and bacon served with fried potatoes and apples, is also extremely popular. Bremen is also a destination for wine lovers - Bremer Ratskeller has the world's largest collection of wine. And of course, Bremen is the home of Beck's Beer.

Kaffee Mühle café

The Kaffee Mühle café is very popular place to go on a day out. For the last 100 years, it has stood in the middle of the Wallanlagen park on the way from the main rail station to the city centre, and is one of the few remaining windmills in Bremen. Its unique atmosphere is an invitation to relax and unwind. With a menu ranging from hearty meals to "just" a cup of coffee, the Kaffee Mühle has something for everyone and is a great venue for parties.

Ratskeller (Town Hall cellars)

The historic Ratskeller (Town Hall cellars) - the magnificent vaults underneath Bremen's City Hall - is home to a priceless treasure: it houses the world's greatest collection of German wines: over 1,200 different varieties. The Ratskeller restaurant serves up traditional Northern German dishes in its unique, historic surroundings. Most diners sit at tables next to the massive, magnificently decorated wine barrels. With luck, you'll be given seats in the Priölken (wood-panelled side chambers, partitioned off from the main restaurant) where merchants and ship owners signed contracts in days gone by.

emma am see

Enjoy the delights of dining at the "Emma am See" café/restaurant in the heart of the Bürgerpark (People's Park) at any time of year. Its menu offers an ever-changing range of seasonal dishes. We particularly recommend a visit when asparagus or curly kale are in season. In summer, relax on the terrace "on" the lake with a deliciously refreshing home-made ice cream. Alternatively, pick up one of the ready-made picnic baskets and savour the carefully chosen selection of goodies on one of the Park's many grassy areas. Younger guests can run about and let off steam in the play area.

NIGHTLIFE

Jonas Ginter / BTZ Bremer Touristik-Zentrale

Bremen is not just a great city to visit during the day. There's also plenty going on at night too! Where you can party into the early hours.

As Bremen's mascots, the donkey, cat, dog and rooster, bid each other goodnight, and the Roland statue closes his eyes to sleep, the city on the Weser river comes to life once again. There are many things to experience in Bremen by night: going on a pub tour with friends in the 'Viertel' district, enjoying an evening out in a stylish bar, or dancing the night away at a trendy club on the 'disco mile'.

<http://www.bremen-tourism.de/bremen-for-night-owls>

The disco mile

For those who want to let their hair down on the dance floor, the disco mile is the just the place.

The disco mile venues are lined up one after another on 'Am Rembertiring', just a stone's throw from the main train station:

Stubu Dancehouse

Stubu is an absolute classic. It is so called because it was originally used by the Bremen students association. On five floors offering different styles of music, people dance and party until the early hours.

www.stubu.de

La Viva

La Viva is particularly popular with students. It plays the latest chart music, as well as house, hip-hip and RnB. This is certainly a place to get dolled up for!

www.laviva-disco.de

Tower

Partygoers jam on the air guitar to the sounds of the Tower. Events here range from 'Tower rock' parties and poetry slams to concerts, often by alternative artists.

www.tower-bremen.de

Sinatra's Dancing

If you want to dance, flirt and have fun, Sinatra's is the place for you. Chart hits, classic tunes, hot beats and cool drinks make for a lively night out in this stylish disco for the over 25s.

The Viertel ('quarter')

The trendy districts of Ostertor and Steintor - which the locals simply call the 'Viertel' - are only a few minutes' walk from the city centre. In the quirky pubs, trendy bars and cosy cafés here, you can relax or get into the party spirit for the night ahead. Tips on pubs and bars can be found here. Two of the best places to go dancing are Lila Eule and Club Moments:

Lila Eule

Opened in January 1965, this basement disco has a long tradition. It was a meeting place for the Bremen APO (extra-parliamentary opposition) and a starting point for the German student movement of 1968. Today it is a club and concert venue, open at weekends and occasionally during the week. It offers a wide spectrum of music that includes everything from electro swing and hip-hop to indie. Thursday is student night.

www.lilaeule.com

Club Moments

As colourful as the Viertel itself, Club Moments is a bar and disco and can be hired for events. It hosts salsa and Latin American dance parties weekly, GayCandy every month and regular concerts.

Clubs away from the disco mile

Modernes This former cinema is located in the Neustadt district next to the university. It hosts parties, such as Freaky Friday, dance nights and 90s parties, as well as regular concerts and comedy gigs. On hot nights the roof can be opened to let fresh air in.

www.modernes.de

MS Treue

This former concrete ship has been converted into a club and is moored right on the Schlachte Embankment. The programme mainly features electronic music nights as well as occasional concerts.

www.mstreue.de

Adiamo Dance Club

The Adiamo Dance Club, located at the GOP Variety Theatre in Bremen's Überseestadt district, offers a very modern setting in which to enjoy fantastic cocktails and music by top DJs. The four bars, dance floor and terrace with river views will ensure any night out here is a memorable one - particularly if it is combined with a show at the theatre.

www.adiamo-bremen.de

Soho Club

The Soho Club is also located in Bremen's Überseestadt district. This trendy hotspot is synonymous with stylish parties and offers views of Bremen's skyline. It plays a mix of club music, classic hits, funk, soul, RnB, disco, house and dance music.

Aladin

The Aladin Music Hall in Bremen's Hemelingen

district covers all the usual styles of rock music, while the former ballroom, the Tivoli, offers an eclectic mix of genres. It hosts concerts, themed parties and over-30s and over-40s nights. The Aladin can also be booked for a wide range of events.

Neustadt district

Bremen's Neustadt district is a real insider tip. Here, on the western side of the Weser river, a new pub and entertainment quarter has emerged in recent years. Late-night revellers can enjoy cosy hang-outs with table football, quirky bars with live music and inviting restaurants with summer gardens. More tips on pubs and bars can be found here.

The Schlachte Embankment

The Schlachte Embankment, right by the river and at the heart of the city, is also a great location for a night out. In summer, people soak up the atmosphere in the many cafés, bars and restaurants, enjoying views of the Weser and the maritime flair right up until midnight. The beer gardens, with seating for 2,000 people, are a must for any visitor to Bremen. In winter, it is cosy indoors with cocktails and mulled wine.

Full of unique and coveted goods, you can't escape Bremen's mix of stores and boutiques. The 16th-century Schnoor quarter is unbeatable, with fishermen and artisan cottages bursting with galleries, goldsmiths and eccentric retail establishments. Keep an eye open for aromatic teas, jewelry and hand-painted crockery.

Those with a penchant for fine spirits will find their holy grail around the main market square: Ratskeller stocks some of Germany's best wines. Just down the road, beautifully hand-crafted toys line the shelves of Martinshof. Sögestrasse comes up trumps with the swish but traditional fashion houses, Stiesing and Roland-Center. All things classy and pricey are located around Fedelhören, where delicatessens, shops and antique stores rub shoulders with designer boutiques.

On a rainy day, head for Domshof Passage. This glass-covered shopping mile is packed with exclusive little shops and boutiques to tempt even the most hardened shoppers. Visit the Ostertorviertel, or simply "Viertel", which is a lively quarter around the Ostertorsteinweg with pubs, discotheques, cinemas, boutiques and shops with groceries from all over the world.

Domshof Passage and Katharinen Passage

The Katharinen quarter and Domshof Passage form a 150 metre long, glass-roofed walkway linking Sögestrasse with the market on Domshof, the cathedral square. The mix of shops reflects its exclusive location and the latest trends.

GREEN CITY AND CYCLING

WFB/Jonas Ginter

What shall I do first!?! If you haven't been to Bremen before, you'll probably find yourself asking this question. Bremen has many attractions to offer its visitors - the Bremen Town Musicians and the UNESCO World Heritage town hall are certainly among the most popular, but Bremen is also a city of science. You can find out how astronauts live in the International Space Station or sit on the earthquake sofa at Universum Bremen. Perhaps you would like to venture into the world of shipbuilding or explore the pretty narrow lanes of the Schnoor quarter? We have put together a list of ten highlights that are not to be missed on a visit to the city.

Rhododendron Park

You can experience a vibrant splash of colour in the heart of Bremen in May, when Bremen's Rhododendron Park is in full bloom. The magnificent colours of more than 10,000 rhododendron and azalea bushes are a delight for the eyes. Its size and collection of plants make this park, in our Hanseatic city, one of the largest and most beautiful of its kind. Plant lovers will be delighted by the Park's Botanic garden, with its collection of more than 6,500 plants from all over the world. The Park is also home to the "botanika" centre, a multimedia nature discovery centre that will delight young and old alike.

Osterdeich/Café Sand/Ferries

The Osterdeich embankment is the most popular place for Bremen locals of all ages to meet up and relax. Conveniently situated between the city centre and the Weserstadion stadium, the Osterdeich is the ideal location for barbecues, meeting friends or simply sitting and watching the sun go down. In summer, it's the venue for the Breminale: a five-day festival of music and culture held along the banks of the River Weser. And if you want to get that "holiday feeling", simply take the Sielwallfähre ferry across the river to the Café Sand: you will find a sandy beach and leisure activities, such as beach volleyball, which make it a popular destination for day trips. However, as any Bremen local knows: there's no telling what the weather will do.

Address: Osterdeich Bremen

Internet: www.bremen.eu/weser-beach-by-cafe-sand

Waller Sand

This is the latest leisure space in the city. It has been created at the end of the New Harbour District, on the site of a former harbour basin. It's the Waller Sand beach park. The park's backdrop of industrial buildings and the Molenturm give it a uniquely urban charm and provide a wonderful setting for watching the sun go down. The Waller Sand leisure park has a large sandy area which includes playgrounds and volleyball courts, and is the ideal place for other sports and games. The Beach Park is easily accessible by bus, by foot along the Weserpromenade or by ferry.

Address: Waller Sand Bremen

Knoops Park

The Knoops Park is a magnificent 19th century garden in the north of Bremen. It was designed by the landscape designer Wilhelm Benque, who also created the Bürgerpark (People's Park). The park's highlights include the elegant Mühlenthal palace and the sensory garden, which gives people with impaired vision the chance to enjoy the natural world in an approachable and accessible way. In summer, the Knoops Park hosts a series of classical concerts as part of the "Summer in Lesmona" music festival.

Address: Knoops Park Bremen
Internet: www.bremen.eu/knoops-park

Mühle am Wall

This 100 year-old windmill in the Wallanlagen park is still one of the most popular destinations in the centre of Bremen. The former flour mill is now home to a welcoming café and restaurant. The mill's elevated position in the park, overlooking the city's old defensive walls, makes it the perfect place for taking photos. Come here to enjoy a coffee and a slice of cake in peace, even though you're right in the city centre. The Kaffee Mühle café is also the ideal starting point for a stroll through the Wallanlagen park.

Address: Mühle am Wall Bremen
Internet: www.bremen.eu/wallanlagen-park

Blockland

Although the Blockland borough is part of the city of Bremen, it has a village-like atmosphere. When it comes to sustainability, Blockland, which encompasses lands outside the city of Bremen, is a true pioneer. The products sold here are all locally sourced and its surrounding countryside enjoys the protection of being a nature conservation area. Blockland is home to more cows than people, which makes it the ideal place to escape from the hurly burly of city life. With its low traffic density, this district is a popular destination for cyclists and water sports enthusiasts who can paddle along the River Wümme to their heart's content.

Address: Blockland Bremen
Internet: www.bremen.eu/life-in-bremen/blockland

Vegesack Municipal Park

Do you feel like visiting the "green lungs" of the Vegesack district? Then head over to the Stadtgarten Vegesack (Vegesack Municipal Park). The Stadtgarten Vegesack was created as a botanic garden by Dr. Albrecht Roth. A botanist (who was also a medical doctor), he established ornamental beds on this site to showcase his collection of rare and exotic plants. Vegesack Municipal Park on the Weserpromenade is now open for the public to enjoy. There are two barrier-free entrances, one from the Vegesack ferry terminal and the other from Schulkenstraße street.

Address: Stadtgarten Vegesack Bremen

Werdersee

The Werdersee (Werder lake) is Bremen's largest and most popular recreational lake, and dates back to the 1950s. A former tributary of the River Weser, it was closed off, and embankments, sunbathing meadows and even a sandy beach were then created on its banks. There's never a dull minute around the Werdersee, because it's such a great place for keeping active, whether you prefer cycling, skating, rowing or canoeing. In summer, major events such as the "Große Bremer Ruderregatta" (Bremen rowing regatta) are held at the Werdersee.

Address: Werdersee Bremen
Internet: www.bremen.eu/stadtwerder-lake-werdersee

Gemüsewerft (urban garden)

The Gemüsewerft is a peaceful oasis with a welcoming beer garden in the centre of Bremen. You'll find it in the Überseestadt (the New Harbour District). The unique feature of the Gemüsewerft is that it is run as an inclusive employment project and serves local beer made by the nearby Hopfenfänger brewery. The organic hops used in the beer are grown on site – you can't get more sustainable than that!. So, sit back and enjoy your beer in a laid-back atmosphere on the river bank.

Address: Gemüsewerft Bremen

The Bürgerpark (People's Park)

Founded more than 150 years ago, the Bürgerpark has more than enough space for people to relax or take part in sport. There's any number of ways of keeping active here – running, cycling, rowing on the lakes or playing mini golf. Children can let off steam in the many playgrounds or visit their furry friends (goats, sheep and guinea pigs) in the open air animal enclosures. The grassy meadows are the perfect place to have a picnic. Alternatively, there's a great selection of refreshments available at any of the park's four restaurants. The municipal forest is located right next to the Bürgerpark. Its lake (also known as the Unisee (university lake)) is a wonderful place for swimming in summertime.
