THE CITY

Volodymyr Burdiak/Shutterstock.com

Cathedral City, commonly known as "Cat City," is named for Cathedral Canyon, which lies to the south. Colonel Henry Washington, a surveyor with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, gave the canyon its name in 1850 because of the cathedral-shaped rock formations he found there.

Like other areas in the Coachella Valley, Cathedral City can be described as mostly suburban. The city itself has grown up around a subdivision that was built in 1925. It has the second-highest population of the nine cities of the Coachella Valley, but it has the second smallest total land area at 21.756 square miles. 28% of this land consists of one-mile parcels of land dedicated to the Agua Caliente Indian Reservation, which also includes a large area of Palm Springs. Cathedral City's population is thusly quite diverse, with a mix of white, African-American, Latino, Asian, Native American, and Pacific Islander citizens. A large LGBT community is also present in Cathedral City, with approximately 25% of the total population of Coachella Valley identifying as gay.

DO & SEE

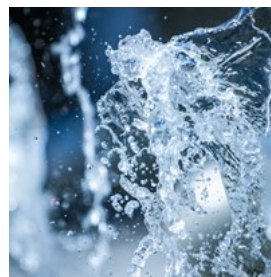

gpointstudio/Shutterstock.com

You will find some of the warmest winters in the country in the Coachella Valley. Warm weather year-round means that anytime is a good time to go hiking or horseback riding in the canyons and mountains throughout the area. The valley has also become a major golfing destination, with 125 golf courses throughout the area.

Additionally, visitors come to the area to attend its many annual events.

The Fountain of Life

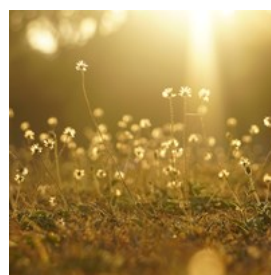

The Fountain of Life is a large stone fountain adorned with mosaic tiles and glass by the artist Jennifer Johnson. A prominent landmark, the fountain represents the land and people of Cathedral City.

In Cathedral City, especially in Coachella Valley, there are a lot of festivals and events. One of the biggest is the Cathedral City Hot Air Balloon Festival: three days of activities for the whole family that include balloon tether rides, romantic dinners, musical entertainment, gourmet food and a lot of activities for the kids. Other important events are Villagefest, Palm Springs Festival of Lights Parade and Palm Springs Arts Festival, that take place in the nearby Palm Springs.
