Copenhagen is a compact big city packed with historic buildings lining its narrow cobbled streets. Here you will find a great mix of world-class gastronomy, beautiful architecture, award-winning design, clean harbour baths, the unique, free town of Christiania, and the seat of the world's oldest monarchy. It has been named one of the best cities to live in several times, and it was the first city in the world to be named the "Bike City" by the International Cycling Union - a title to which the several hundred bike lanes bear witness.

THE CITY

Sean Pavone/Shutterstock.com

Copenhagen is an ancient city, full of beautiful historic buildings and many points of interest. The ramparts and walls surrounding the centre of the city were demolished around the middle of the nineteenth century. This allowed the city to assume the peculiar architectural structure characterised by narrow stone streets that lead directly to the city centre and which are the background to numerous shops and bars.

In recent years, Copenhagen's historic architectural heritage has been enriched with modern and contemporary buildings. An example of these are those designed by the Danish and French architects Bjarke Ingels and Jean Nouvel, who gave a new touch to the old-fashioned style of the city. At the same time, many districts have been modernised as well.

Copenhagen is also known for its relaxing atmosphere. Citizens go to work by bike, they like to go out with their families, spend an afternoon in one of the city's many parks in the company of their friends, take a bath in one of the many pools in the harbour during the warmer months and take an active part in the events that animate the city throughout the year.

Inner City

The Inner City can be defined as the metropolis of Copenhagen, which encompasses the oldest district of Copenhagen with pretty narrow streets and original houses. The city centre is full of shops, bars, restaurants, parks, numerous canals and of course the Nyhavn, the wonderful harbour of Copenhagen. The main street of Inner City is Strøget, which goes from the town hall square to Kongens Nytorv. Strøget is always frequented by a myriad of street performers, but do not forget to take a trip to the pretty side streets like Frederiksberggade, Nygade and Vimmelskaftet.

Østerbro

Broad boulevards, impressive parks, countless cafes and innovating design shops. The neighborhood of Østerbro, which is also called Copenhagen Ø, is somewhat posh and extravagant but at the same time completely down to earth.

Østerbro is located north of Copenhagen city centre, right nearby the old city gate Østerport. Shop design items at Normann Copenhagen, sip a glass of wine at Panzon or relax and rest in Fælledparken – Denmark's largest public park.

Frederiksberg

Frederiksberg is a fashionable part of Copenhagen with excellent shopping opportunities and green areas. It is considered to be posher than Nørrebro and Vesterbro and people living here are usually slightly older and more established. The main street through Frederiksberg is Gammel Kongevej - 'Old Kings Road'. Shopping is great in this neighbourhood with a variety of clothing shops as well as sushi restaurants, cafes and delicacy shops. The same is true for Værnedamsvej, which is seen as cosy, yet cool. Frederiksberg is also a green oasis with Frederiksberg Gardens, the romantic garden of the Faculty of Life Sciences and Søndermarken.

Vesterbro

Once Vesterbro was mostly known for its infamous red light district. Today it is one of the most trendy places in all of Copenhagen. The district is situated within walking distance from the city centre, right behind the Central Station. It is one of the most fashionable places in the city - not just to live, but to shop, eat, drink and have an amazing and memorable night out.

Nørrebro

Vibrant, colourful, casual and young at heart, Nørrebro is a magic area of Copenhagen. Here you will find trendy bars and fashionable designer shops next door to dodgy dive bars and cheap kebab places. If you are into small design shops head for Elmegade or Jægersborggade, and if you like antiques Ravensborggade is the place for you to head to. At Sankt Hans Torv and the streets around it you have plenty of choices for dinner and drinks. And at Assistens Cemetery you can visit the grave of famous Danes, such as the famous fairy tale writer Hans Christian Andersen or philosopher Søren Kierkegaard, or get inspired by the Nørrebro citizens and relax in the park.

SUSTAINABLE CITY

News Oresund/cc by 2.0/Flickr (cropped) (image cropped)

Copenhagen is often mentioned as one of Europe's most environmentally conscious cities in Europe, if not the entire world. The Danish capital hopes to become carbon neutral by 2025, and it's already taken a number of steps toward this goal.

First, their buses are rapidly shifting from diesel power to electric energy. Not only does it have a strong positive impact on air quality, but also reduces noise pollution. Additionally, more roads are being built specifically for biking. Subsidised prices for electric bikes are making the switch from cars ever more attractive.

When it comes to tourism, two-thirds of Copenhagen's hotels are eco-certified. This means they use the best standards for sustainable energy, food and design. Many of the city's restaurants sell organic food.

Green Bike Tours

Green Bike Tours is a non-profit company that offers bike tours and walking tours in English with a focus on the green and sustainable city.

Their routes take you through different parts of Copenhagen via bike-friendly streets and bridges. You'll bike at a comfortable pace through the city center and into the neighborhoods of Vesterbro, Østerbro, Nørrebro and Islands Brygge.

On the 3-hour tour you will experience amazing hidden gems, urban gardens, wonderful green areas, cozy squares and recreative areas, plus solar installations, green roofs, harbour pools, green architecture, energy efficient buildings and wind turbines.

Urban Gardens and Wild Nature

Copenhagen has numerous parks and gardens that are perfect places to relax, sunbathe, have a picnic with friends or just read a book.

Copenhagen Municipality is driven by a nature-based urban development model, creating green spaces for humans as well as non-human animals. Instead of sterile green lawns you will see a jumble of wildflowers and herbs like Yarrow, Pulmonaria and Asters that are swarmed by eager insects.

The King's Garden is a popular spot for Copenhageners and Frederiksberg Gardens has lush open spaces and canals. Explore the district of St. Kjeld's neighbourhood on Østerbro where wild plants and freshly harvested vegetables are a common sight. Some of Copenhagen's cemeteries are commonly used as green breathing spaces perfect for a walk.

Copenhill

Copenhill is spectacular and innovative — an artificial ski slope and hiking area built on top of the new waste-to-energy plant. Copenhill supplies energy to tens of thousands of homes and businesses. A guides tour will take you to the very top by elevator, where you will learn about the entire building: the architecture, the vision, sustainability practices and the ski slope.

You can bring your own skiing and snowboarding equipment, or you can rent some from the local shop. The slope is open year round since it does not rely on snow. The shimmering metal structure has an excellent view of the Copenhagen's downtown.

If skiing is not your thing, how about climbing? The climbing wall at Copenhill is the world's tallest at 85 meters.

Baths and Beaches

In Copenhagen, you are never far from a beach. In the summer you can go for a swim in the many centrally located harbour baths. Amager Strandpark offers 4.6 kilometres of white sand beach, Islands Brygge Harbour Bath has five basins and Urban Beach offers sand, shells and drinks.

Amager Strandpark is also ideal for children. On one side, you have children's pools and on the other side sand and dunes. Fun times for every age are guaranteed.

Camp Adventure

Located south of Copenhagen, the recently inaugurated Camp Adventure is mostly known for its 45 metres-tall glass tower, from the top of which one can enjoy a sweeping view of the surrounding forest. The park, spanning over 7.5 hectares of land, also offers a zip line experience as well as 10 different climbing courses for kids and adults alike.

Escape the capitalist crunch and head to Freetown Christiania, a hash-scented commune straddling the eastern side of Christianshavn.

Since its establishment by squatters in 1971, the area has drawn nonconformists from across the globe, attracted by the concept of collective business, workshops, and communal living. Explore beyond the settlement's infamous 'Pusher Street' - lined with shady hash and marijuana dealers who do not appreciate photographs - and you'll stumble upon a semi-bucolic wonderland of whimsical DIY homes, cosy garden plots, eateries, beer gardens, and music venues.

Rosenborg Slot

A 'once upon a time' combo of turrets, gables and moat, the early-17th-century Rosenborg Slot was built in Dutch Renaissance style between 1606 and 1633 by King Christian IV to serve as his summer home. Today the castle's 24 upper rooms are chronologically arranged, housing the furnishings and portraits of each monarch from Christian IV to Frederik VII. The pièce de résistance is the basement Treasury, home to the dazzling crown jewels, among them Christian IV's glorious crown and Christian III's jewel-studded sword.

The Little Mermaid

New York has its Lady Liberty and Sydney its Danish-designed Opera House. When the world thinks of Copenhagen, the chances are they're thinking of the Little Mermaid. Love her or loathe her (watch Copenhageners cringe at the very mention of her), this small, underwhelming statue is arguably the most photographed sight in the country, as well as the cause of countless 'Is that it?' shrugs from tourists who have trudged the kilometre or so along an often windswept harbourfront to see her.

Whether locals like it or not, The Little Mermaid has become Copenhagen's most recognisable symbol, and visiting to snap a quick shot is, certainly, worth the detour from the city's core. This commemoration of Andersen's genius is conveniently located right next to the historic fortress of Kastellet, so make sure to walk through the green star-shaped area on your way back.

Dating from 1843, tasteful Tivoli wins fans with its dreamy whirl of amusement rides, twinkling pavilions, carnival games and open-air stage shows. Visitors can ride the renovated, century-old roller coaster, enjoy the famous Saturday evening fireworks display or just soak up the story-book atmosphere. A good tip is to go on Friday during summer when the open-air Plænen stage hosts free rock concerts by Danish bands (and the occasional international superstar) from 10pm - go early if it's a big-name act.

DO & SEE

Oleksiy Mark/Shutterstock.com

Copenhagen is an old city with historic buildings, royal castles, beautiful parks and harbours, and plenty of attractions and activities to keep even the most eager tourist busy. The city centre is characterised by charming architecture and narrow curving streets. But within recent years Copenhagen has supplemented its architectural heritage with new, world-class architecture. It is easy to explore the city and get around, and many sights are within walking distance from one another. You can always catch a bus or take the metro to get around, or rent a bike and travel the Danish way.

Visit Carlsberg

Børsen

Not many stock exchanges are topped by a 56m-tall spire formed from the entwined tails of four dragons. Børsen is one. Constructed in the bustling early-17th-century reign of Christian IV, the building is considered one of the finest examples of Dutch Renaissance architecture in Denmark, with richly embellished gables. Its still-functioning chamber of commerce is the oldest in Europe, though the building is not generally open to the public.

Gefion Fountain

At the southeastern edge of Kastellet is Anders Bundgaard's monumental Gefion Fountain, depicting the Norse goddess Gefion steering some rather stoic oxen. The fountain was donated to the city by the Carlsberg Foundation to celebrate the brewery's 50th anniversary in 1897.

Det Kongelige Bibliotek

Scandinavia's largest library consists of two very distinct parts: the original 19th-century red-brick building and the head-turning 'Black Diamond' extension, the latter a leaning parallelogram of sleek black granite and smoke-coloured glass. From the soaring, harbour-fronting atrium, an escalator leads up to a 210 sq metre ceiling mural by celebrated Danish artist Per Kirkeby. Beyond it, at the end of the corridor, is the 'old library' and its Hogwarts-like northern Reading Room, resplendent with vintage desk lamps and classical columns.

Holmens Kirke

Queen Margrethe II took her marriage vows here in 1967, and while much of the present Dutch Renaissance-style structure dates from 1641, the church's nave was originally built in 1562 to be used as an anchor forge. Converted into a church for the Royal Navy in 1619, the building's burial chapel contains the remains of Admiral Niels Juel, who beat back the Swedes in the crucial 1677 Battle of Køge Bay. Other highlights include an intricately carved 17th-century oak altarpiece and pulpit.

National Gallery of Denmark

Statens Museum for Kunst, the Danish national gallery, is the only place in Denmark that features 700 years of Western art and cultural history under one roof. Consequently, a visit to the museum means an artistic encounter between classical, modern and contemporary art, just as the museum building itself that represents a fusion of new and old. In addition to the permanent exhibition the museum is also highly capable of delivering temporary exhibitions of international quality and outlook.

DINING

mffoto/Shutterstock.com

Copenhagen is the leading gastronomy capital of Scandinavia. The city has more Michelin restaurants than any neighbouring country, 15 in total, and Copenhagen was until recently home to Noma, which was awarded as the World's Best Restaurant three years in a row.

Whether you are into bistros or Michelin-starred restaurants, there is plenty for you in Copenhagen. The restaurant scene is among the world's most distinct and innovative, and it caters to all budgets. When dining out, try the much appraised Nordic kitchen at least once. It is known for being of high quality and with a focus on using local and seasonal products.

Peder Oxe

Restaurant Peder Oxe opened in 1978 and it is therefore one of Copenhagen's oldest restaurants. Peder Oxe lies at the historical Gråbrødretorv, which makes your visit a big experience. Peder Oxe focuses on using the products of the shifting seasons, which gives the guest a unique exquisite meal beyond the usual. For lunch it is recommended to try the Danish speciality open sandwiches - in Danish called smørrebrød.

CAFES

William Perugini/Shutterstock.com

Curious about Danish cakes and pastries? When in Denmark, you have to try a real Danish - or wienerbrød, as it is called here. They are sold in many varieties at bakeries and cafes all over the city.

The oldest patisserie in Copenhagen is La Glace which was founded in 1870. Amongst many mouth-watering cakes and pastries, you will find the classic Sports Cake, which mainly consists of whipped cream.

There is nothing better than to grab an ice cream cone to go on a nice day. Denmark is famous for its dairy products, and you can understand why when you try local ice cream. Did you know that Danes are one of the most ice cream-eating people in the world? The average Dane eats 10 litres of ice cream a year!

Cafe Dyrehaven

The cafe's location in the hip neighbourhood of Vesterbro sets the tone for the cafe's vibe - a trendy mix of eatery and pub, this venue is known for its impeccable breakfast foods, and Morgenmadstallerken (Breakfast Plate) in particular. The cafe is open until late into the night and it serves not only coffee, but also a selection of beer and wine.

Paludan Bog&Café

Is it time to catch up on some reading, or you just want to browse through endless amounts of books and get inspired... but are you in need of coffee too?

Paludan Bog Café is the perfect place for you. The cafe started out as a bookstore and publisher which focused on selling books to students. At the turn of the millennium, the owner decided that a good book store needed to be served with coffee. The customers recommend the flavorful Cortado with a Morning Plate filled with bread, Greek yogurt and fruit!

Bastard Cafe

Sometimes you need something else with your coffee, and we are not talking about pastry, cakes or food. Sometimes all you need is an old-fashioned board game which transports you back to the good old days. That's what the Danish have the Bastard Café for. Besides the regular cappuccinos and café lattes, they also offer Monopoly, chess and scrabble. The café can easily be found in the neighbourhood of Christiansborg Slot.

Kalaset

Nowadays you can find lots of vegetarian and vegan cafes, but this is the café that has been recommended by the Copenhageners themselves. Kalaset serves the most delicious pancakes (try the walnut variety with raspberries), and the most amazing hamburgers. One of their most famous burgers is the 'Little Miss Sunshine', inspired by the movie and filled with a patty of chickpeas, grilled vegetables and an olive tapenade. Could you resist?

Atelier September

Tea. One of the most soothing drinks that there can be. Atelier September has dedicated their drinks menu not just to the traditional Western-European style, but also to the flavours of Asia. Some of the Japanese tea they offer is Matcha, Hojicha and Oolong. To make it special, they serve their food and drinks with traditional Japanese tableware.

Next Door Café

There are some cafes where you feel like home right away. It's not hard to understand why that's the case at Next Door Café. The owners, Skyler and Klaus, live next door and decided to make an extension of their living room. This explains the kitsch and quirky decoration and the comfortable chairs! Get yourself a cappuccino and let your worries vanish when you sink into one of those. Skyler recommends the lemon squares, it's his mom's recipe. Enjoy!

Enghave Kaffe

Even if you just had a sip of the best coffee in the world - if the service isn't up to standards, it's not the best coffee experience of your life anymore. The reviews of Enghave Kaffe state that they have the friendliest staff of all the cafes that they have ever been to. Good thing that coffee lives up to expectations, too. Try the flat white and it's like you're in coffee heaven. Bonus: laptops are not allowed, so you won't hear the tapping noises of someone's fingers on the keyboard.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Sean Pavone/Shutterstock.com

Whether you want to dance till the sun comes up or just have a beer or two with some friends, Copenhagen has plenty of establishments to choose from, ranging from laid-back bars to posh upscale clubs.

Copenhageners love to go out - especially on the weekends. Cocktails are popular, and you will find several bars where you can enjoy a skilfully crafted drink. If you are more a beer person, Copenhagen offers various pubs, bars, and breweries, too. Each neighbourhood has its own favourite spots, and, apart from downtown, Vesterbro and Nørrebro are the places to be after sundown.

Mikkeller Bar

Located in Vesterbro (Copenhagen's favourite night-life area) Mikkeler is a bar and craft brewery that simply can't be missed. Craft beer lovers will have a fabulous time beer tasting, and the cosy atmosphere with lit candles and small tables create a pleasant intimate feel.

SHOPPING

Maridav/Shutterstock.com

Copenhagen is great for shopping, both because of the variety of the shops and because the city is compact. Start your shopping trip in the inner city. On Strøget, you will find most of the big chain stores and more exclusive shops.

Stroll down the small streets parallel to Strøget and Købmagergade where you will find vintage shops, Danish designers such as Wood Wood, Malene Birger and Henrik Vibskov, and small jewellery and ceramics shops.

Streets outside the inner city that are worth checking out are Istedgade, Gl. Kongevej, Elmegade, Jægersborggade and Østerbrogade. Enjoy, and remember your walking shoes.

Field's

Field's is the largest shopping centre in Denmark located with excellent accessibility for all. In Field's you get everything under one roof. It is Copenhagen's ultimate shopping and leisure destination and the perfect place to shop, eat and meet your friends.

TOURIST INFORMATION

alexdrim/Shutterstock.com

Passport/Visa

Denmark can be visited visa-free for up to 90 days by citizens of Australia, New Zealand, Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Malaysia, Israel, UAE and most countries in America. If you are unsure whether or not you need to apply for a visa, we recommend contacting the embassy or consulate in your country. International (non-Schengen) travellers need a passport that is valid for at least 3 months after the end of their intended trip in order to enter the Schengen zone. Citizens of Schengen countries can travel without a passport, but must have a valid ID with them during their stay.
