Pézenas in the heart of the Hérault Valley

At the heart of the vineyard, 20 km from Cap d'Agde, Pézenas - the capital of Languedoc in the 16th and 17th century - was classified as a "City of Art" and features amazing architecture that is still intact: lively streets, artisans' workshops and residences. This is where the great Molière lived who founded the Comedie Française and to whom tribute is paid at the Musée de Vulliod Saint-Germain.

Villages in the Hérault Valley

Pézenas, the heart of the "Land of art and history", is a gateway to the 16 other towns and villages of Cap d'Agde Mediterranean, with an interesting heritage of monuments to discover: churches, chapels, abbeys, mazets, residences, mediaeval and classical painted ceilings, fortified mills, 19th-century pinardier castles and locks. Villages with circular architecture are also very intriguing.

Heritage of Southern France, from Antiquity to the 20th century

A 2600-year-old cradle of history, the Phocaeans settled in the trading port of Agathe Tyche, the town of Agde today, followed by the Greeks, and then the Romans, who left traces of their culture in our towns. The mediaeval period has left behind chapels, churches, fortress mills, circular villages and various traditions like the tamburello court game or the fantastic bestiary of totemic animals that roam our villages. With a more classical tone, the towns of Agde, Pézenas or Montagnac have strong links with mediaeval fairs, trade and history. The future great French author of the 17th century, Molière, roamed the streets of Pézenas before those of Versailles. Our beautiful ancient architecture stands alongside modern 20th-century architecture such as the Cap d'Agde resort created in the 1970s.

Canal du Midi: the dream of the Sun King

Showing the incredible and technical prowess of the 17th century, this unparalleled masterpiece of civil engineering joins the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Bridges, locks, staircase locks, round locks, canal bridges, built by thousands of men. Its inventor Pierre Paul Riquet died before seeing the completion of his work. The visionary canal-builder ended life poor, and the canal's commercial use has now been replaced by tourism, bike rides along its banks and activities on the water (musical cruises) or at the water's edge. It is more than 350 years old and has been recognised as UNESCO World Heritage for Humanity.

With its marine protected area and its hundreds of hectares of wetlands rich in wildlife, Cape d'Agde Mediterranean is an open-air conservatory of species. Pink flamingos, bulls, hawks, bats... dozens of species live happily not far from the beaches, valley and the Hérault plains. Attentive walkers, armed with binoculars or a camera, can quietly discover and capture all of this lush life. Come alone or with a guide to explore protected areas and uncover a little-known side of Cap d'Agde Mediterranean. Traditional destination

Agde, a history founded in 580 BC by the Greeks, anchoring the city between maritime trade and fishing. Developing over the centuries, it has left behind strong traditions in the daily life of the inhabitants, with festivities and times of togetherness that you'll have the joy of sharing with the locals, leaving you with the happy memories!

Water jousting tournaments are a fun time when teams of 2 boats and their jousters wearing white clash to the sound of fanfares; the games keep coming all summer at the foot of the cathedral, stopping only in low season.

Another event embedded in religious fervour and festivities is the Fête des Pêcheurs (Fishermen's Celebration) in July, where fishermen, sailors and residents come together with the Belles Agathoises parade in traditional costume. To better understand these maritime roots, be sure to visit the Belvédère de la Criée aux Poissons (the name given to the fish market).

At Pézenas, which is so close and unique, UNESCO now protects this "intangible cultural heritage" that is so heart-felt and generously shared by the local residents, making it part of the place's DNA or better yet, its spirit. During your stay, be sure to take part in these seasonal events, which follow the path of the Sun: Nadal, the revival of light just before Christmas on the winter solstice; Carnival, the end of winter with the insolent breath of spring and rising sap; Sant Joan at the triumph of the summer solstice, and Martror, the day of the dead and winter of life accompanied by macabre dances.

Canal du Midi Destination

The canal can be discovered in many ways: the classic way is an excursion boat, departing from Agde, Grau d'Agde, Vias or Portiragnes, with or without meals. You can also travel along the banks of the canal, on the old towpath by bike or on foot in certain parts. Various events are organised on the canal, such as music cruises. Lastly, you can rent a canal and navigate the Canal as you please, or sleep in a floating guestroom.

Agde and Pézenas labelled "Sites of Arts and Crafts"

In the quiet streets of Agde, the arts and crafts workshops of the Perle Noire show the challenge of modernising the myth of the "Belle Agathoise".

The seamstresses with gold fingers, accessories designer, fashion designer, jewellery designer, jeweller-sculptor and leather goods maker... all show their expertise at their workshops and Galerie de la Perle Noire de la Maison des Métiers d'Art throughout the year with exceptionally sophisticated parades and exhibitions.

At Pézenas, crafts have been deeply embedded in a long history that started 50 years ago for summer visitors with La Mirondela dels Arts, where craftsmen occupy their 17th-century vaulted stone shops year-round.

In the beautiful surroundings of a Renaissance residence, the "Ateliers d'Art de France" (France Art Workshops) are a showcase of creative talents: 130 creative artisans from all over France present jewellery and home décor.

The crafts of restoring heritage and theatre

The Métiers d'Art centre of Pézenas was designed around the theme of restoring heritage through wood, iron and stone crafts and, as necessary for Molière, the crafts of the theatre. Restoration crafts are essentially stonework, metalwork and woodwork with artisans that have labels allowing them to work on the restoration of historical monuments. Theatre crafts are currently located in Agde with a prop person who was trained at the Comédie Française. Other trades relate to restoring heritage such as gilding with fine gold, restoring paintings, creating and restoring stained-glass windows, and restoring antique furniture and upholstery.

Medieval heritage destination

Most of our towns and villages have a mediaeval origin; we find elements of this heritage in Agde (piece of ramparts and cathedral), Pézenas (Tower of Peyrat, Faugères gate), at Vias (old dwelling), Castelnaud de Guers (the Castle), Saint-Thibéry (the abbey), the circular villages of Saint-Pons de Mauchiens, Caux, Nézignan l'Evêque and Nizas. The rural chapels of Saint-Jean de Bébian, Saint-Martin de la Garrigue, Saint-Martin de Conas and Saint-Adrien d'Adissan bear witness to this past, together with the fortified mills of Roquemengarde and Conas or the painted ceilings of the Brignac hotel in Montagnac.

Classical heritage destination

The end of the French Wars of Religion gave way to a period of peace and prosperity in France. For many towns, this meant that the mediaeval walls were gradually abandoned to make room for expansion, with the development of promenades and avenues. The mediaeval fairs of Pézenas and Montagnac still held a strong passion and the richness of these cities resulted in the construction of many residences that can still be seen today. Agde saw a similar boom and its residences were built in basalt; this was also the case in Vias and Portiragnes. The churches are decorated with altarpieces (Pomérols, Pézenas) and furniture. You can discover these treasures with guided tours and a free tour map and audio text.

Nature-loving and ecologically responsible

Cap d'Agde is increasingly active in favour of ecology with the Bagnas National Nature Reserve, "Les Posidonies du Cap d'Agde" (Cap d'Agde Posidonia) a Natura 2000 Preserved Marine Park, beach protection, green routes and a network of cycle tracks. Its Beach Quality Plan guarantees clean bathing water and coastlines in Cap d'Agde. Neighbouring Vias and Portiragnes, Pézenas and Saint-Pons de Mauchiens are also working to preserve endangered species and wetlands. With the wetland of Grande Maire in Portiragnes or the nature reserve of Roque-Haute between Agde and Béziers. Do you know that bats have a Natura 2000 protected area in Pézenas and that the lesser kestrel now only nests in Saint-Pons de Mauchiens. At Bagnas, there are 250 protected bird species: stilts, ducks, flamingos, herons, birds of prey and other migratory birds...

The protected sector of Pézenas

A jewel of architecture, with various facets of the Middle Ages (a mediaeval Jewish quarter), Renaissance, but above all, 17th-century

architecture, including many residences nestled into the streets of bygone age. It's a town inhabited by the ghosts of Molière, the Prince of Conti and many others, and currently home to craftsmen, artists and entertainers. Inscribed on the World Heritage List by UNESCO the canal can be discovered from the water at the slow pace of a floating barge or during a wonderful walk along its shady banks. You'll discover the only round lock, also made of basalt, with 3 different levels of water; a technical feat built in the 17th century. In Vias, the Ouvrages du Libron (Works of Libron) are a technical feat that ease the flow of water into the sea. At Portiragnes, the Canal is bordered by 4 km of cycle paths, and joins the towns with the beach. It passes through a unique natural area inhabited by birds, bulls and Camargue horses. 20th century heritage destination

The Cap d'Agde has a "20th century heritage" label, a distinction that honours buildings and major urban centres built between 1900 and 1975.

Built in the 1970s by Jean Couteur a great seaman, lover of the sea and founding architect, "Port Saint-Martin" will be the first district of the seaside resort to take off as part of "Mission Racine" (a government project for the seaside tourist development of Languedoc-Roussillon). Ancient heritage destination

The Musée de l'Ephèbe of underwater archaeology of Cap d'Agde is unique in France, it displays treasures once swallowed up by Adge's waterway:

rivers, lakes and sea. All these objects, which include the most important collection of bronze statues found in situ bear witness to the town's past wealth and charm. Pinet features a section of the old Roman road, Via Domitia. You can walk on a small section of the road and look at the explanatory panels. Elements of the former Oppidum d'Aumes (former proto-historique habitat) can be seen in the small church in the village square. Excavations have uncovered a Roman villa on the site of the Auribelle, not far from Pézenas. A sarcophagus was found in Castelnau-de-guers, a copy of which can be seen

Wine destination

The Languedoc region has been producing wine since Antiquity and the field of winemaking has continued to this day with men and women who are proud of their profession, which is also their passion. Come and meet them in their wineries and cellars! They have endless knowledge about their vines, cultivation method (organic, sustainable or biodynamic), wine and production. They are present at certain events: Vinocap, Estivales, evening events and winemaker markets. Some of them host photo exhibitions or have theatre performances in their cellars. Come and knock on the doors of the 93 winemakers who welcome in the public! Some were born here, others come from far away. Karen Turner-Pageot, a winemaker in the St-Jean de Bebian domain in Pézenas received the "Sakura Women's Wine Award" for best winemaker of 2017. Others come from Russia and have invested in our vineyards. Now, thanks to everyone's effort, Cap d'Agde Mediterranean wines have gained international acclaim and are exported all over the world.

A jewel of architecture, with various facets of the Middle Ages (a mediaeval Jewish quarter), Renaissance, but above all, 17th-century

architecture, including many residences nestled into the streets of bygone age. It's a town inhabited by the ghosts of Molière, the Prince of Conti and many others, and currently home to craftsmen, artists and entertainers. TEMPORADAS

"This is a collective which organises the seasonal festivals of Pézenas. They work to combine knowledge, practices, research and the imaginary, all linked to the idea of an intangible cultural heritage. Thanks to the collective, we can participate in 4 traditional Temporadas festivals which celebrate our link to the cycle of time.

- the start of the Carnival (1st of February until the 25th of February) and Sant-Blasi's Day (the protector of the town) take place when Nature awakens, in the period from winter to spring.
- with Nature maturing in the period from spring to summer, we have Saint-Joan d'Estiu's day, on the Summer Solstice on the 20th of June.
- with the waning of Nature, Martror Day occurs on the 2nd of November, during the period from summer to autumn.
- and to begin the period of regeneration, from autumn to winter, Saint-Joan d'Ivèrn, or Nadal, is celebrated at Winter Solstice on the 22nd of December."

Le Bistrot d'Alex

The Bistrot d'Alex proposes all the terroir has to offer: fish from the Mediterranean sea, shellfish from Thau lake, meat and poultry from Aveyron and vegetables from the region's farms. The wines, served by the glass or by the bottle, come from Florensac and from our partners (Vacqueras, Muscat from St Jean de Minervois, Noilly Prat and champagne from Nicolas Feuillatte) who will be happy to let you try their products in the tasting cellar, before your meal. All under the direction of chef Alexandre Fabre and his associate, Jean-Claude Fabre, who both contributed to the reputation of the Michelin-starred restaurant, Léonce.

Les Marronniers

Located in the heart of the antiques and bric-a-brac district, the restaurant Les Marronniers welcomes you all year round. The Chef respects culinary traditions, using fresh, seasonal produce and all the dishes are made in-house. This establishment is, as Daniel Vaudon, the owner, puts it, a gourmet bistro where you can enjoy the dish of the day or taste authentic Iberian tapas in the evening ("chipiron" squid, razor shells, croquettes, Pata Negra ham, etc.) or indulge in Aubrac meats grilled "a la plancha". All of this in the atmospheric setting of Les Marronniers that makes you feel good, whether you sit in the summer garden, on the winter terrace or in the dining room.

A great experience that epicureans will enjoy. Wine list featuring local vintages...

Crêperie La Ribote

Brittany in the south. Originally from Brittany, we discovered Agde while travelling. This Black Pearl of the Mediterranean, bordered by the River Herault and the Canal du Midi, boasts 26 centuries of history and an ease of living that made us want to stay. It was in this historic heart, on Rue de l'Amour, that we chose to share our love of and passion for one of the culinary traditions of Brittany: buckwheat pancakes and wheat-flour crepes. Hence, over the last 20 years, the Crêperie La Ribote has become a top attraction of Vieil Agde.

La Table de Stéphane

The restaurant is located in the "7 fonts" business park, a 5-minute car journey from Cap d'Agde. Quoted in a number of guides including

MICHELIN, GAULT & MILLAU, GUIDE HUBERT and PETIT FUTÉ... this restaurant serves dishes made from fresh ingredients, the majority of which are locally sourced. The focus is on fish and seafood but there is also a selection of meat, poultry and offal dishes, including kidneys, sweetbreads and squab, to name just a few. Seasonal menus are frequently suggested, on the theme of spring, or with truffles or blue lobster in summer... From Tuesday to Friday, simpler BISTRO-style dishes are available at lunchtime, so that you can eat in under an hour. In summer, the beautiful shady patio at the restaurant entrance makes you forget the external appearance. Last but not least, because this restaurant is outside the town centre, you'll have no trouble parking.
