This small but perfectly formed city in the picturesque county of Devon has preserved many of its historic features while enjoying all the amenities and vibrancy of a modern cosmopolitan hub. Exeter is the perfect base to explore the surrounding English countryside dotted with pretty villages, quaint old pubs and tea rooms serving the famous Devon cream tea. All of this comes with the added bonus of being only a short journey to the nearby coastal resorts, fishing ports, and sandy beaches of the English Riviera and the World Heritage Jurassic Coast.

THE CITY

jenny/Shutterstock.com

Frequently voted one of the best British cities to live in, Exeter certainly breathes an atmosphere of sophistication, culture and charm with this very old city kept young at heart by the large student population attending the University of Exeter. Exeter's history and prosperity began with the arrival of the Romans, whose most obvious legacy is the almost completely intact red stone defensive wall that surrounds the city centre. Today, the manageable city and compact central district showcases centuries of different architectural styles with much of its well preserved medieval layout, offering tantalising opportunities to amble among narrow cobbled streets and discover tucked-away unique independent shops, bars and cafés. Located in the heart of the city and enclosed on two sides by some fine buildings, Exeter's Cathedral Church of St Peter dominates the skyline and its surrounding lawns, while terraced cafés and upmarket shops make for a popular meeting point on fine sunny days. A 10 minute walk south beyond the ancient city walls leads to the Historic Quayside on the banks of the River Exe. Once an important trading port, this is now a fascinating waterfront attraction featuring all manner of places to eat, drink and shop all housed within the former historic port buildings along the Quayside.

UNIQUE SPOTS

ian woolcock/Shutterstock.com

Exeter and Devon have got a lot of unique and hidden places. But you have to discover most of them by car, bike or walking as they are not accessible by public transport.

Cockington Village and Cockington Court

Many villages lay claim to being 'picturesque', but the village of Cockington is the real deal. Take a walk back in time along Cockington's narrow lanes, lined with thatched houses and you'll experience a quiet charm that is quintessentially English. Everything about Cockington oozes with history - there's a water mill, a forge and even the cricket pitch was once a medieval deer park. It seems like a little, cute and human Hobbiton!

At the heart of the village is Cockington Court, a manor house with roots in medieval times, surrounded by hundreds of acres of gorgeous country park.

Today, Cockington Court is a hub for art and crafts and in the brand new contemporary craft centre you'll find a canoe maker and a chocolate maker, and you can watch glassblowers and blacksmiths in action.

Cockington Court has a full programme of events including open-air theatre, Cockington Fayre, Cockington Apple Day and the ever-popular Cockington Christmas Fayre as well as regular art and craft exhibitions. Check their events calendar before your visit.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Syda Productions/Shutterstock.com

With a wide variety of smart wine bars and historic pubs, Exeter has a buzzing nightlife scene to keep the young at heart happy into the wee hours of the morning. Many venues offer live music and there are several nightclubs playing music to suit most tastes.

The Cosy Club

Cosy Club Exeter takes the meaning of the word 'quirky' to a different level; the bar is inspired by an operating table and is illuminated with surgical lighting whilst the walls are adorned with oil paintings, taxidermy, anatomical charts, and Eastern Bloc propaganda. Added to which is the usual eclectic mix of reclaimed furniture, opulent Victorian lampshades and original 1960's Concorde hangar lights and there you have it.

The building is split down the middle with the bar to your left as you enter and the restaurant filling the right hand side of the building. There's also a terrace cantilevered off the back of the building where you'll be able to enjoy the sunshine during the summer months

SHOPPING

Monkey Business Images/Shutterstock.com

Exeter's compact and mostly pedestrianised centre makes shopping a breeze with a wealth of familiar and unique retail choices to help do some serious damage to your credit card. The historic High Street running through the centre is easy to navigate (only buses are allowed through), and features many of the big brand stores such as Laura Ashley, Marks & Spencers, Waterstones, Boots and Dingles, now part of the upmarket House of Fraser group.

The Guildhall and Harlequins are two of the covered shopping centres, while the newly opened Princesshay hosts a collection of high-end brands and independent outlets. The cobbled atmospheric and ancient Gandy Street is the place for distinctive designer wear, crafts and unusual accessories, while the steeply sloping Fore Street has a collection of retro clothing, music and extreme sports stores. Continuing downwards to the bottom of the hill, the Quayside has a small but rewarding collection of gift, craft and antique shops housed in historic cellars and warehouses.

Princesshay

Exeter's newest shopping Quarter, Princesshay, has a great mix of popular fashion stores and favourite brands including Debenhams, Crew, Molton Brown, Topshop, Zara, New Look, Hotel Chocolat, Reiss, Karen Millen, LK Bennett, Fat Face, Oasis and the region's only Apple Store.

Gandy Street

Many consider Gandy Street to be one of the most charming and interesting streets in Exeter. Just off the High Street, it is lined with bijou gift shops such as Kintamani and Moko, independent jewellers selling hand made jewellery, such as Silver Lion, and a selection of intimate wine bars and restaurants, including Hatts and John Gandy's.

Quayside Area

The Quayside has been enhanced to provide a fascinating mix of historic and contemporary design.

It is the ideal place to browse antique shops, walk and cycle, take a relaxing boat trip or find something good to eat.

Just 10 minutes walk from the city centre are small local shops sited in historic cellars and bonded warehouse, such as Eclectique and Goodwood Cellars. Sited around the River Exe there's a mix of antiques and crafts shops, such as Quayside Crafts & Gifts and the Warehouse Gallery. You can hire bicycles and canoes from Saddles & Paddles to explore the River Exe and canal, or simply relax at one of the al fresco restaurants and cafes with waterside views. Take the foot ferry or footbridge across to Piazza Terracina for watersports equipment at AS Watersports, or visit one of the mediterranean style cafes and restaurants, such as Bar Venezia, the Waterfront or The Prospect. For great live music head to the Revelry.

Best Time to Visit

Much like the rest of the United Kingdom, Exeter does often get bouts of rainfall, but these are normally not too disruptive to tourists' visits. The best time to plan your trip for is the summer, June through August, when the weather is at its warmest and most pleasant. On the contrary, the months of December through February are known to be some of the rainiest.

Exeter Airport (EXT)

Exeter Airport is located at Clyst Honiton in the District of East Devon, five miles from Exeter city centre and five minutes from the M5 motorway.

The bus connecting the airport and the city centre is called Stagecoach. The quickest route by bus to and from the city centre bus station is to take the 56 (56A 56B), which operate 6 days a week (Limited route on Sundays and Bank Holidays). The journey time is approximately 25 minutes.

The airport's only authorised taxi company, Apple Central Taxis, operates from the taxi stand outside the Arrivals building. You can pre-book by telephone or in person at the Taxi Desk.

There are some approved car hire operators at the airport such as Hertz, Budget and Europcar.
