Catalonia's second city is many things: medieval stronghold, university city, party town, and modern urban centre. The Old Quarter, with its majestic cathedral, winding alleys and ancient city walls bring the Middle Ages to life, while the modern neighbourhoods across the River Onyar showcase Girona's cosmopolitan side with chic restaurants and cafes, superb shopping and vibrant nightlife. It is no wonder that for years running, Girona has been voted the best place to live in Spain.

THE CITY

Szymon Kaczmarczyk/Shutterstock.com

Girona, which lies less than 100 kilometres from both Barcelona and Perpignan, has over the years been under Roman, Moorish and French control, and was once one of the most important Jewish centres in Europe, until their expulsion from Spain in 1492. Even though the Jewish community never returned, much of the old Jewish quarter in Girona and its labyrinthine streets have been beautifully preserved while the medieval heart is now surrounded by modern Spanish architecture. Today it is a thoroughly modern city with a large student population, a thriving art scene, hip bars and chic boutiques.

The River Onyar, lined by buildings in red and ochre, divides the old city from the new, and though it rarely amounts to much more than a trickle these days, is a good place to begin exploring. The numerous unique bridges that stretch over the river, from the old stone bridge to its modern steel counterpart designed by Gustave Eiffel, ease communications between both sides of the city, and provide some of the best views of the iconic facades along the river.

DO & SEE

dmitro2009/Shutterstock.com

Girona is above all a city to be walked. The medieval beauty of the Old Quarter, with its winding cobblestone alleys, pleasant plazas and the unique facades hanging over the River Onyar, is compact enough to explore in depth on foot, and beautiful enough to keep you wandering in circles for days. But don't miss the chance to visit some of the wonderful museums and local attractions, including skiing, ancient monasteries and the unmissable Costa Brava.

Plaça de la Independència

Neoclassical Plaça de la Independència is the city's central square and the heart of civic life in Girona. The square is always busy with pedestrians, diners and revellers, as the intimate space is lined with restaurants, cafes and bars that are as lively by day with people-watchers as they are by night with party-goers.

The Jewish Quarter

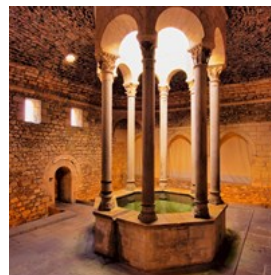

The Jewish ghetto - El Call - is one of the best preserved in Europe and is a major tourist attraction. Take a walk around the old quarter with alleyways of stairs bordering Carrer de la Força. The roots of the old Jewish community can be explored at the Museum of the History of the Jews, built on the site of a 15th-century synagogue.

Kzenon/Shutterstock.com

Girona stands tall among the strong tradition of Catalan food culture, not only as the home of El Celler De Can Roca (the second-ranked restaurant in the world in 2015), but as an overall top foodie destination. Pa amb tomàquet - tomato bread - is a common starter, while the Crema Catalana is an obvious and delicious choice for dessert. Mar i Montanya - a mix of poultry and seafood - and Calçotada are other traditional dishes that are worth trying. For celebrations, you have a go with some bubbly Cava.

El Celler De Can Roca

El Celler De Can Roca is the internationally famed restaurant of the Roca brothers, three expert chefs known worldwide for their spectacular

Catalan cooking. It was ranked second on the 2015 list of World's 50 Best Restaurants, so it is absolutely necessary to book ahead, but if you manage to make a reservation you are in for one of the best meals of your life.

CAFES

Tobias Klein/Shutterstock.com

Cafes in Girona are all about outdoor seating on pleasant plazas or narrow alleys under the shade of trees and stone arches. Coffee, pastries, and ice cream are all on offer, alongside local wine and plenty of tapas, of course. Cafes here are also gathering places and lively centres of urban life at any time of day or night.

L'Arc

L'Arc sits at the foot of the steps that lead to the imposing cathedral, and has for 50 years provided a first-row seat to the city's most iconic structure. It is especially popular among students, artists and tourists, and is thus always lively. Try the ratafia, a drink made from 80 herbs, best served on ice.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Iakov Filimonov/Shutterstock.com

Girona's nightlife is heavily influenced by the many students that call the city home. Diverse bars, pubs, and nightclubs can be found throughout Girona, with the numerous establishments based in and around Plaça de la Independència being a particularly popular gathering point to get the evening started. The weekend is naturally the busiest time for nightlife, but lively venues can be found any day of the week, especially on Thursday, which is a popular night for students.

Plaça de la Independència

The city's central square is a meeting place for people of all ages at any hour, but after dark is when it really comes to life. That's when students, tourists, and workers gather in throngs to eat, drink, and be merry in the numerous restaurants and bars that surround the plaza. It is, by far, the best place to experience Girona's nightlife and immerse yourself in the spirit of the city.

SHOPPING

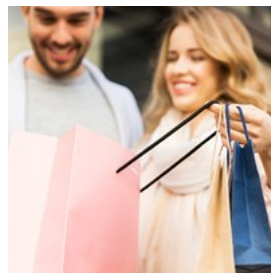

Kite_rin/Shutterstock.com

Girona has a full range of shopping options, from designer fashion to traditional handicrafts and everything in between. Delicatessen is a particular strong point, with artisanal cheese shops, speciality chocolateries and great markets. There are also many craft and antique shops throughout the different shopping districts that showcase some unique items that make for perfect souvenirs and gifts.

Rambla de la Llibertat

The best place to start a shopping tour of Girona is on Rambla de la Llibertat and the streets in and around the old quarter, which offer plenty of shopping, and if you walk around you will easily find small and original shops and boutiques selling unique items or clothing, as well as crafts, delicatessen and much more.

Passport/Visa

Spain can be visited visa-free for up to 90 days by citizens of Australia, New Zealand, Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Malaysia, Israel, UAE and most countries in America. If you are unsure whether or not you need to apply for a visa, we recommend contacting the embassy or consulate in your country. International (non-Schengen) travelers need a passport that is valid for at least 3 months after the end of their intended trip in order to enter the Schengen zone. Citizens of Schengen countries can travel without a passport, but must have a valid ID with them during their stay.

Best Time to Visit

Girona, located in Spain's northeastern Catalonia region, has a temperate climate throughout the year, allowing visitors to comfortably explore the wonders of the city. The very hottest months are June, July and August with temperatures reaching up to around 31°C. During this period, the city becomes a favourite haunt for tourists from the world over, rising accommodation prices up to 60%. On the contrary, the perfect period to save up money is during the month of September, when temperatures are still warm enough to delve into the city's history.
