Perugia is the provincial capital of Umbria, one of Italy's most beautiful regions. The ancient heart of the city, packed full of Etruscan and Roman monuments, perches on a hilltop with the modern city spread below. With a prestigious university, the city has a lively student population, good shopping, fun bars and great restaurants. If that weren't enough, Perugia is the setting for one of Europe's best jazz festivals: Umbria Jazz.

THE CITY

dvoevnore/Shutterstock.com

Perugia was an Etruscan settlement between 6th-1st century BC, falling to the Romans in 40 BC. The quantity and quality of remains from these periods is impressive, particularly the ancient walls and gates to the city, many of which remain intact.

Another of its charms is its size: the historic centre is small enough to walk around in half a day - though, add in all the galleries and museums of note, and you have enough to keep you busy for a long weekend. Ask at the tourist office for a leaflet detailing walking itineraries around the city.

DO & SEE

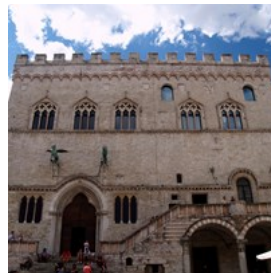

Lorenzo Patoia/Shutterstock.com

One of Perugia's charms is the merging of ancient and modern, for example, here you can walk under giant stone arches constructed 2,000 years ago or shop in a modern department store. The city offer a wide array of museums, so take some time to discover a few of them.

Palazzo dei Priori

This is a beautiful medieval structure, first built at the end of the 13th century, and the subject of many additions and alterations over the years. Head up the stairs in Piazza IV Novembre and into the Sala dei Notari - completely covered in allegorical and biblical frescoes that date from the 13th century.

Entering the palazzo from Corso Vannucci takes you to the Galleria Nazionale dell'Umbria and to two further rooms: the Collegio della Mercanzia and the Collegio del Cambio. The Collegio della Mercanzia is beautifully panelled in wood, probably done by German craftsmen in the 15th century. The Collegio del Cambio has two rooms, the second with stunning late 15th century frescoes by Perugino.

Piazza IV Novembre

Piazza IV Novembre was the main square of the Etruscan city, and the Roman Forum. In medieval Perugia, it was the point at which the five principal roads crossed and even today it is at the heart of Perugia. As an open-air venue it can't be beaten: in the summer, thousands of people gather here to enjoy the Umbria Jazz Festival.

Fontana Maggiore

This fountain, between the cathedral and the Palazzo dei Priori, is considered to be one of the best examples of its kind in existence. It was constructed around 1275 by father-and-son sculptors from the city of Pisa.

Church of San Severo

The 11th century church of San Severo (Cappella di San Severo) was built on the site of a pagan temple. Rebuilt in the 18th century, it is noteworthy for the fresco in its 14th century chapel: the upper part is by the great Renaissance painter Raphael, the lower part by Perugino.

Tempio di San Michele Arcangelo (chiesa Di Sant'angelo)

This is one of the oldest churches in Italy - dating from the 5th century AD. Strange symbols and references to the Knights Templar can be seen, as well as the symbol of the pentagram near the church entrance. This is a must-see.

Rocca Paolina

This fort was built in the mid 16th century as a symbol of the Papal domination of Perugia. Pope Paul III had his architect raze an entire area of the city - 100 houses, churches and monasteries disappeared, and the massive fortress was built in their place. Mostly destroyed by the citizens of Perugia in 1860, you can enter the foundations of the fortress from Porta Marzia, or ride the escalator up from the car-park at Piazza Partigiani.

DINING

Lesya Dolyuk/Shutterstock.com

Hearty recipes involving pork (try porchetta alla perugina/roast sucking pig), olive oil, truffles and great pasta dishes are the hallmarks of Umbrian cuisine. Perugia is full of restaurants, many of them so small that reservations are essential. The snack of choice in Perugia is pizza - all over town there are tiny takeaway pizzerias serving pizza by the slice.

SHOPPING

Christopher John SSF/Flickr.com (image cropped)

Perugia has many fashion and shoe stores, including some well-known designer names. As a university town, it's also no surprise that Perugia has some good book stores: even if you're not buying, Italian book stores are great for browsing.

Corso Vannucci

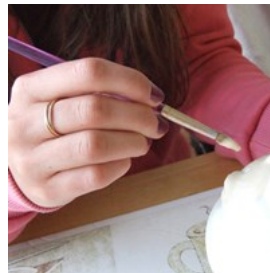

The principal shopping street in Perugia is the wide, pedestrianised Corso Vannucci, along with the streets that run off it and parallel to it:

Piazza Matteotti, Via C. Fani, Via Baglioni and Via Oberdan. Perugia in general and Corso Vannucci in particular, have many fashion and shoe stores, including some well-known designer names like Max Mara. Pick up some lingerie at Intimissimi - an Italian chain - or try Calzedonia for smalls and funky, well-priced tights.

TOURIST INFORMATION

Steve Lovegrove/Shutterstock.com

Passport/Visa

Italy can be visited visa-free for up to 90 days by citizens of most European countries, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Malaysia, Israel, UAE and most countries in America. If you are unsure whether or not you need to apply for a visa, we recommend contacting the embassy or consulate in your country. International (non-Schengen) travelers need a passport that is valid for at least 3 months after the end of their intended trip in order to enter the Schengen zone. Citizens of Schengen countries can travel without a passport, but must have a valid ID with them during their stay.

Best Time To Visit

If you are looking to enjoy mild temperatures, April to June are good times to visit Perugia but be prepared for some rain as well. The winter is surprisingly dry however, so avoid the months of October to December, where rainfall is at its highest. If you are interested in classical music, make sure to check out the dates for the annual Summer Classical Music Festival in Perugia.
